CONGRESS.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

MONDAY, April 4.

Mr. Boyd, a member from New Jersey, in the stead of Ezra Darby, deceased, appeared and took his seat.

Messrs. Upham and Jenkins obtained leave of absence for the remainder of the session.

Mr. Randolph, from the committee to whom the subject had been referred, reported a bill making provision for arming and equipping the whole body of the militia of the U. S. which was twice read and referred to a committee of the whole.

The engrossed bill for raising an additional military force was then read; and the question having been put, "shall this bill pass?" An extremely interesting debate arose, which occupied the house until they adjourned, at 4 o'clock, without taking a question. Messrs. Copley, Howard, Smiley, Troup, Alston, Rhea, Taylor, Lyon, and Quincy supported the bill, and Messrs. Randolph and D. R. Williams opposed it. [This debate will be given with all possible dispatch.]

Tuesday, April 5.

Mr. M. Williams obtained leave of absence for the remainder of the session.

A petition was received from the inhabitants of Newburyport, Mass. praying the liberty of exporting fish; which was referred to the committee of the whole on the state of the union.

Mr. Gardner laid upon the table a resolution to appoint a committee to enquire into the propriety of providing by law for the adjournment of Congress to an earlier period than already provided by law.

Mr. Barker presented several petitions from the dealers in fish, praying the liberty to export the same, &c. which were referred to a committee of the whole on the state of the union.

On motion of Mr. Isley,

Resolved, That a committee be appointed to enquire into the expediency of authorising the president of the U. S. to exchange the site of the fortification near Portland harbor, for other land more suitable for a fortification for the protection of said harbor, and that they have leave to report by bill or otherwise.

Mr. Stanford from the committee appointed on a message from the president of the United States, relative to the deficit of appropriations for public buildings in the city of Washington, reported a bill to make appropriations for that purpose, and for other purposes.

The bill, after some debate, was recommitted to the committee who reported it, with instructions to make a detailed report, and to enquire into the expediency of abolishing the office of surveyor of the public buildings.—(Detail of proceedings on this in our next.)

The house took up the unfinished business of yesterday, on which a debate continued till near five o'clock, when the house adjourned.

Messrs. Stanford and Randolph opposed the bill, and Messrs. Macon, Blount & Burwell supported it.

A motion made by Mr. Randolph to postpone the subject for one week was negatived 68 to 38.

The following message was received on the 25th ultimo, and has been referred to Messrs. Blount, Quincy, Burwell, Cook, Riker, Troup and Witherall.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States.

In proceeding to carry into execution the act for fortifying our ports and harbors, it is found that the sites most advantageous for their defence, and sometimes the only sites competent to that defence, are, in some cases the property of minors, incapable of giving a valid consent to their alienation; in others, belong to persons who may refuse altogether to alienate, or demand a compensation far beyond the liberal justice allowable in such cases. From these causes the defence of our seaboard, so necessary to be pressed during the present season, will in various parts be defeated, unless a remedy can be applied.—With a view to this, I submit the case to the consideration of Congress, who estimating its importance, and reviewing the powers vested in them by the constitution, combined with the amendment providing that private property shall not be taken for public use, without just compensation, will decide on the course most proper to be pursued.

I am aware that as the consent of the legislature of the state, to the purchase of the site, may not, in some instances, have been previously obtained, exclusive legislation cannot be exercised therein by Congress, until that consent is given. But in the mean time it will be held under the same laws which protect the property of individuals, and other property of the United States, in the same state: and the legislatures, at their next meetings, will have opportunities of doing what will be so evidently called for by the particular interest of their own state.

TH: JEFFERSON.

March 25, 1808.

"To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States.

"I transmit to both houses of Congress, a report from the surveyor of public buildings, of the progress made on them during the last season, of their present state, and of that of the funds appropriated to them. These have been much exceeded by the cost of the work done, a fact not known to me till the close of the season; the circumstances from which it arose are stated in the report of the surveyor.

TH: JEFFERSON.

March 25, 1808."

FRIDAY, APRIL 8.

It is with satisfaction we announce that the whole number of Shares of Stock for building a Bridge across the Potomac have been subscribed for, and that the Commissioners will meet to-morrow for the purpose of appointing the time of holding an election for Directors.

A vessel arrived at Marblehead on Monday last, in 36 days from Rochelle, brings dispatches from Mr. Armstrong, for our government. The bearer was landed at Portland, and is supposed to have proceeded on to Washington.

At Antigua, on the 11th ult, the prices of American produce were—Flour 15 dollars, plenty; tobacco 14 dollars, scarce; rice 7, plenty; fish 7 50, scarce; corn 2 50, do lumber of all kinds scarce and high.

Extract of a letter from Cadiz, dated February 13.

"The French have levied on the inhabitants of Lisbon a contribution of twenty millions of dollars; and as the Prince Regent carried off all the specie in his expedition to the Brazils, the church plate has been seized and two-thirds of the church revenues held in sequestration for the payment."

EXECUTIVE INFLUENCE.

"SIR,

"A scene has taken place in the house of representatives, that however degrading to that body, even closed doors shall not conceal from the people of the United States. It proves incontestably, a base and servile obedience on the part of the majority, to the mandates of the president, equally disgraceful to themselves and dangerous to the interests of the country; that they have become so totally dependant as to exercise no will or discretion, beyond the orders issued from the Palace, and to them they yield the most prompt and implicit submission—On Wednesday last, the President sent to both houses a message, that, by repeated calls for papers, had been wrung from him, like drawing his teeth, containing a letter from Mr. Champagny to Mr. Armstrong, the most important document infinately, that has been submitted to Congress during the present session, implicating the question of peace or war, in which Bonaparte undertakes to declare us in a state of war with England, and confederated with him and his vassal powers of the continent. This paper was deemed of the utmost consequence to be laid before the public, that the people might see the true state of the country, and the presuming authority of the French emperor towards our government. Accordingly a motion was made on Thursday morning for publishing it, when a majority of the house, 71 to 49, by three several votes upon the yeas and nays, refused even to consider the question.

"Motions to the same effect were brought forward on Friday and Saturday, which shared the same fate, from the same dead majority, recording their yeas and nays upon every vote, and assigning among other reasons equally absurd and servile—that it would be highly injurious to our interests abroad to publish the confidential communications of our ministers; that the true interests of our country required that they, and especially this, should be kept secret; that the publication would excite the popular fervor against France, and prejudice the operations of our government—Some of the weaker ones did indeed, give the true reason, that the president had not directed it to be published and would not like it; one or two of them however, vapoured much about their independence, and declared they wished for no information from the president on the subject, that they would on no consideration, vote for publishing, as it would be obviously and highly improper to do so.

Thus passed on this humiliating conclave shew until Saturday about one o'clock, when, lo! another message was received from the president, authorising the publication of the letters from Messrs. Champagny and Erskine, and instantly, without another word, an unanimous vote of the house was had for their publication!!! I defy any member of the majority, however he may wince under it, to contradict this statement, or to deny again the influence of Mr. Gardner's "unseen hand." But it is to be observed, that this permit to the majority was not issued by the president until after several gentlemen had openly declared, that they would, upon their own responsibility, publish these papers; that documents of such infinite importance to the public should not be concealed from the people. Much parade has been made lately about laying information before congress, and we have indeed had submitted to us every thing that has passed between the British government and ours, from 1804 to the conclusion of the negotiation on the subject of the Chesapeake; but from France, till this letter of Champagny, nothing, other than papers relating to the French blockade and American vessels

carried into French ports, except, I believe, one short extract of a letter from Mr. Armstrong of about ten lines. From the sixteenth of August, I think, to the twenty-seventh of December, there is, so far as appears to us, an entire chasm in Mr. Armstrong's correspondence with his government—nothing even by Dr. Bullus. No man can believe that our minister, at such a time, has been so grossly and criminally negligent of his duty. With the means of information Mr. Armstrong has his observations, his opinions, his mere speculations upon things passing before him at Paris, and much more, that the language Bonaparte has PERSONALLY HELD TO HIM and to other foreign ministers in HIS PRESENCE, are at this alarming crisis of the utmost importance to be known, both as they would be entitled to influence the future operations of government, and to prepare the public mind for whatever may be the result. But of all this we have nothing—these are secrets too halidow to be intrusted to the representatives of the people, they can be no where safe but in the private scrutoire of the president, not even in the office of the secretary of state, where such papers heretofore were always deposited—they would account rationally for the embargo; but the embargo unfortunately won't do, its operation is too sensibly felt in the French and Spanish West-India islands, and the insatiable tyrant of Europe, determined, as he is, to beset the ocean, to plant a foot on this side the Atlantic, and give orders to the civilized world, will not be content with such half way servility from Mr. Jefferson and his leading string majority—No, Sir, after all our cringing, from the passage of the St Domingo bill to the present moment, we find at last, that our only alternative is sheer disgrace or war with France—for "there shall be no neutrals."

We must now shut our ports against England alone, or France will make war upon us—We must ruin ourselves, and basely dishonor our ancestors—We must unite with Bonaparte, whose touch to liberty is pestilence and death, in order to starve and destroy England, or we must fight him—Let every American decide for himself, the time is at hand when the decision must be made; if we are united and firm we are safe, we can only fall by treachery or suicide.

Mount-Washington for Sale.

I will sell my FARM in Fairfax county, and give immediate possession. It is less than three miles from Alexandria, and six from the George-Town ferry—the distance from the projected bridge will be less—the house stands on an elevated hill, and overlooks the City, Alexandria, the river, with the shore, and hills of Maryland. The house which I erected, and is nearly finished, consists of a center house two stories high, and wings of one, joined to it, by circular corridors, the north wing contains 2 small rooms, the front of it, and the corridor adjoining, intended for a green house, this leads to a drawing room—a dining room separated from it by the passage and stair-case, is next to the south corridor which contains 3 closets, and leads to the kitchen—two small rooms in this wing with the kitchen—a pump of excellent water at the door. The second story of the center house contains 3 chambers and a dressing room, with fire places—a large closet adjoins the dining room—one of the same size opens on the stair case, both fitted up with shelves—a store room in the garret, and cupola on the house top, from whence is seen a delightful, variegated landscape, completes the description of the mansion house. A neat cottage accommodates laborers, and there are stables, a carriage house, and ice house; the farm contains 103 acres, 70 enclosed and cultivated, the rest in wood; this place boasts the finest collection of fruit that I have seen, besides every other sort; the list given to me was 800 apples, 800 peaches, and 800 cherry trees: I have added several hundred of the best kinds.—The garden consists of 12 large squares, the soil enriched and borders filled with fruit trees, and bushes; it is surrounded by a live cedar hedge, which also extends on each side of the house: the former proprietor possessed much taste, and collected many ornamental trees and shrubs, which are judiciously disposed about the grounds. The soil is suitable for grass, and the portion of ground devoted to timothy and clover, yield an abundant crop; it produced good wheat and oats last year, and I think with small expense may be rendered productive. Those who wish a residence, where health will be preserved, and convenience of intercourse with Alexandria, George-Town, and the seat of government, will find all combined in Mount-Washington. I will shew the premises and impart the terms of sale, upon applications by letters directed to the Post-Office, Alexandria.
